

This page discusses the discovery of the ancient manuscript in more detail than the previous section allowed.

This page discusses how the expedition crossed the northern pass in more detail than the previous section allowed.

This page discusses the translation of the first three pages in more detail than the previous section allowed.

This page discusses what the scholars found written in the margins in more detail than the previous section allowed.

This page discusses the journey back to the capital city in more detail than the previous section allowed.